

David Culwell / Vol. 14.1 / Winter-Spring 2024

Glory

The sun at my back
Spilled me like ink
On a scrap of fog
By a river's brink.

A rainbow ring
Circled my head,
A wonder I
Would've misread

As the workmanship
Of my own mind
If I hadn't felt
The heat behind.

